Lizards and Lions in Stone Stand Sentry Watch where Carmel's Great Artist Works within Mediaeval Walls

By IRENE ALEXANDER

Now in its second week at the Carmel Art association gallery, the exhibit of oil paintings by William Ritschel, N. A. is proving of unusual appeal to visitors. Rarely do they come without returning, so wide a horizon is offered by the sixteen large canvasses and so varied are the emotions they stimulate.

Here are a profusion of marine paintings, rich and deep and as Paul Mays observed, so full of air and light and the very essence of the sea it is no wonder art critics everywhere have acclaimed William Ritschel supreme in this field. One visitor to the gallery, Ralph Murray of Monterey, himself an artist, doubted after seeing them, if he would ever attempt another marine.

"I'm coming back," he declared, "when I can spend at least two hours with that amazing and stupendous exhibit. I want to learn more about painting by letting all this sink in. What impresses me is that with so little color variation, so little change in color tone, Ritschel produces such a dynamic effect. The sun

Two Bitten, Dog Owners Becoming Lax—

Whether children on vacation from school cannot resist turning their dogs loose for play, or adults, after the first shock of the rabies quarantine are growing careless—whatever the cause, more dogs were running loose in Carmel Tuesday than should have been, and as a result, two persons were bitten and the S.P.C.A. poundman picked up five dogs in addition to the two that did the biting.

Tommy Broslin, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Broslin was bitten on the school grounds by one of a pair of dogs running loose on a double leash. When a police officer tried to catch the dogs one of them bit his boots and it was necessary to get the poundman to take the dog. It is now under observation for rabies as is the dog that bit Bill McKenzie earlier in the day.

A check with the pound reveals that eight dogs have been picked up in the past week. The SPCA truck patrols Carmel on an average of five out of seven days, but unless the citizens cooperate, complete enforcement cannot be achieved. Dog owners who are obeying the law by keeping their dogs confined complain that they are annoyed by the loose dogs who attempt to fight with their dogs when they are walking them on leash. Too many people are turning their dogs loose on the beach without taking into consideration that it was a rabid dog running loose and biting other animals on the beach that originally brought the quarantine down

Noel Sullivan to Give "Bundles" Benefit Concert

Bundles - United - America - Britain has never had more pleasure than in announcing that two well-known Carmel artists will give a concert for the benefit of their society at The Playhouse on Saturday afternoon, May 8 at 3:30. Neither artist needs any introduction to Carmel audiences, but it is some years since Marjorie Legge Wurzmahn has given a public pianoforte recital, except for her delightful performances given for the USO. Noel Sullivan has recently given successful recitals in San Francisco and the East and his friends here have been eagerly wondering when Carmel might have the pleasure of hearing more of his sensitive artistry than the one or two numbers which he usually sings at the Bach Festival. It is like Mr. Sullivan's generosity that he should give his first recital in Carmel for a charity and like his hospitality that half of the proceeds should go to friends in foreign lands, to our British allies. The other half of the proceeds goes to Bundles for America. Both Mrs. Wurzmahn and Mr. Sullivan lead such busy lives that their giving of their time and art to the help of Bundles-United is particularly appreciated.

Bundles-United know that there

SMALL NEIGHBORS

When you take a peek at how the other 99.99 1/2% live, be a good citizen and replace the rock, Dr. Rolf L. Bollin of the John Hopkins Marine Station at Pacific Grove urges in his amusing and enlightening article on the feature page of this issue.

He lives on the Mesa and raises a flourishing victory garden, caring his hours off from research at the Marine Station. He holds an AB from the University of Utah, an MA and a PHD from Stanford, has successively been an instructor, professor and director at the Marine station. He can speak with authority on Oceanography, Ichthyology, Herpetology (his field work is paxonomy, morphology and the embryology of fishes) but he doesn't for us in the article of this issue. He speaks simply and amusingly of the vast population of small creatures that swarm over, under and around the rocks on our seashore doorstep.

John Gilbert Tells of Warden Setup In Reorganized Civilian Defense

Many of our citizens and newcomers have asked what the Civilian Defense of Carmel is doing about protective measures in the event of an enemy attack or emergency. What to do? Where to go? How can I help? Are all facilities organized to provide protection?

As Mayor and Commander of Civilian Defense of Carmel and the area surrounding Carmel, I wish to say that much has been done in recent months to provide our citizens with the maximum of protection with all available facilities. Re-organization of the Civilian Defense in our community has taken place. This has been done quietly in order to eliminate confusion and misunderstanding. We have attempted to make our

Salinas Chief On Hot Spot in Grand Jury Probe

The district attorney, the Salinas chief of police and the County Grand Jury, two members of which are Harold Nielsen and Mrs. Charlotte Clark of Carmel went around and around Wednesday with the Salinas chief in the unenviable position as center of the circle, subject of the gyrations being: if certain houses of joy and chance exist in Salinas as they are alleged to exist, and occupy the nights of the agricultural workers so fully that they are not fit nor willing to continue with their labors of filling the nation's food basket the next day, why have these places been allowed to continue to purvey their distracting entertainment, and what does the Salinas chief of police have to say for himself?

Among the people the grand jury and the district attorney questioned Wednesday were a "madam" who is serving a county jail term, five Chinese gamblers, and two members of the Salinas police department.

"The testimony isn't all in," Nielsen said yesterday. "So naturally I can't say anything. The district attorney and several members of the grand jury are asking some pretty pertinent questions. We didn't finish Wednesday, so we'll go on with the investigation when we convene next Thursday. But if there is a question of graft or pay-off, we're going to get to the bottom of it."

VIA CRUCIS 1943

Again the little crosses on the pines
Bereave the Easter sky. They seem more true
Than all this lyric gaiety that shines
And flames from every leaf and flower and hue.
They hold before the sorrow-deepened sight
A memory far more tempered to the times
Than this blue wealth of intervening light
Wherein the birds ring out their April chimes.

Lifted against the sun they stand secure;
They have a strength no onslaught can destroy.
The grief upon them is more deep and pure
And somehow nearer to the heart than joy.
Across the darkened years the living tree
Still points the way: the Light on Calvary.

Mayor Appeals to Carmel People for V-Drive Backing

Several large purchases, one for $20,000, have placed Carmel at the half way mark of its $276,000 victory bond quota, Mayor P. A. McCreery announced yesterday. But the first $125,000 are the easiest, he points out and now makes a direct appeal to the citizens of Carmel, saying:

As Mayor of Carmel I ask my fellow citizens to join to the full extent of your financial ability in the Treasury Department's Second War Loan Campaign

Nielsen, Ferrante Run for Election To School Board

Harold Nielsen and Peter Ferrante filed their intention to run for re-election to the school board with County School Superintendent James Force Wednesday. As the period for filing has closed, their names will appear uncontested on the ballot on election day, May 21.

Nielsen, clerk of the board, replaced Dr. W. B. Williams, and Ferrante, Mrs. L. H. Levinson, both short term members, two years ago when they declined to serve again.

Hugh Comstock, president of the board, in speaking of the two candidates yesterday said: "I have known Harold Nielsen for years. He used to do painting work for me. He has quietly come ahead, achieving his own business, attaining stature in the community. Peter Ferrante is a busy man yet he finds time to work hard for the board, too hard, I think sometimes considering all the other community activities that have a claim on his time."

Comstock added that he thought the board is well balanced with Nielsen representing the business people, an attorney in

Stalin Despises Democracy W. K. Peltz Writes in Answer to Swezy Article; Offers Public Debate on Subject

Carmel, April 17, 1943
Editor, Pine Cone Cymbal:

Miss (or Mrs.) Olive Swezy in her article of 16th inst. describing Stalin as a "Not Dictator" is either in complete ignorance regarding this undisputable fact or has a predilection to misinform readers of your newspaper.

I will abstain from entering into a dispute regarding Stalin's dictatorship in the columns of a newspaper for such dispute would cause a useless waste of precious wood pulp; however, I am willing to enter into a public discussion with anyone who during a period of about 20 years of Stalin's rule and harsh dictatorship has been unable to grasp the true and world known facts concerning the status of Stalin.

Stalin is a dictator with all that name implies, and as expressed by Henry C. Wolfe in his book "The Imperial Soviets," it must be kept constantly in mind that he is an Asiatic, that he has never had any experience with Western liberalism and that he despises the philosophy of democracy.

An enormous amount of nonsense has been written about this subject and it is regrettable that misleading articles are printed about a country and its ruler which are contrary to reality.

Adding that I lived in Russia during the Czar, Kerenski and Bolshevik regimes and am personally acquainted with pivot personalities of the before mentioned regimes, I am,

Yours very truly,
W. K. Peltz.

Carmel Artist Works Within Mediaeval Walls

on the water seems to blaze out at one from the canvas."

While the majority of the paintings on display are seascapes, they by no means comprise the whole of the artist's work. In the medium of rocks and trees, of South Sea Island foliage, of snow, of men and animals, and in the single portrait included, his "Flower of the Orient," William Ritschel meets the eye with an unforgettable impact, and conveys the feeling of life with stunning force.

Tacked up in the corner of the George F. Beardsley Memorial room, where the exhibit hangs, is a leaflet page giving, as is customary, data about the artist. It contains a list of the distinguished societies into the membership of which has been admitted during his long and active life: The National Academy of Design; New York Water Color society; American Water Color society; Salmagundi Club; Artists' Fund society; National Arts Club; Allied Artists of America — all of New York City; the Kunstverein, Munich; the California Water Color Society. To these might be added, also, the honorary life membership conferred upon him by the Bohemian Club of San Francisco in 1930.

It contains, too, a list of awards won by William Ritschel both in this country and abroad — a long and impressive list, and one learns that works by this artist have found their way into many of the notable museums of America.

But contrary to the usual custom, the data posted in the gallery includes no single biographical detail about the man whose brush has worked this magic.

Biography — the chronological record of personal experience as such, is of scant interest to William Ritschel, nor to his glowing and talented wife, Nora, either. Both have a prodigal disregard for documents and proofs, records and reminiscences. There is the flavor of the Orient in their attitude toward time, and it is a very serene and lovely sense of timelessness that the visitor to the Ritschel studio in the Highlands carries away with him.

The past is there, of course, in the weathered rock of its walls and the patine which time and sea air have laid upon the wrought iron hinges of its heavy doors in the twenty-five years since William Ritschel designed his permanent Carmel home and its stones were laid in place by a Spanish mason. And there is a fleeting association with the past, too, as one glances up from the driveway at the great, square tower rising above those intricately terraced gardens that climb the cliff. It could so easily be a donjon keep of feudal days.

Then at the top of the winding rock stairway, past the friendly lions and lizards which Mr. and Mrs. Ritschel have fashioned here and there of cement through the years while their garden has grown and sent out little unexpected shoots of stone pathway and sheltered nooks and mounting lookouts, the unobstructed view of sea and sky and mountain takes possession, and one can understand why William Ritschel, with his overpowering love of nature and the sea, chose this particular spot in which to withdraw a bit from the distractions of crowding humanity and paint, as he does when the mood is on him, from early dawn until far into the night.

Much has been brought back from world travel to give a mellow beauty to the vast studio room, but whatever its origin or antiquity, each object takes on a pleasant usefulness of today in the Ritschel household. The Danish model, made to scale of the good ship "Doris" in the year 1789, and salvaged at great risk, so goes the legend, from a fire which consumed the little village church where it had been enshrined — since the superstition was that the fate of the "Doris" was tied up with that of its small replica — served, I venture to guess, as model for the Ritschel painting, "Drifting Toward the Saragossa," now hanging in the Carmel art gallery.

No one whose eyes look out so understandingly and affectionately upon life and nature as do William Ritschel's today, or who believes so vehemently that the purpose of art is to foster happiness, could have failed to lead a full and vivid life. There are few parts of the world in which he has not traveled. His wit is too ready and his personality too striking for a recluse, but one feels that he has mingled with people for relaxation and gone back over and over again to nature in order to recharge himself for his creative work.

Born in Nuremberg, Bavaria, Mr. Ritschel spent his childhood in one of those romantic Gothic houses for which the old city is noted. There were artists before him in the family; the monument of Luther in Worms is the work of an uncle. His own early desire to sketch was frowned upon, however by his father, a government official, who tried to offset the fact that William was the worst boy in school, with no yen for geography and history, by tutoring him at home in Latin and Greek.

His first painting was done at the age of three, he explains with a twinkle in his eye. He was discovered by his horrified parents contentedly lying on his back under the feet of the spirited carriage horses, engaged in painting their hooves.

"All my life," he added, "I have loved to paint horses."

In spite of parental objections, art became his career. For seven years he was a student at the Royal Academy in Munich.

Then a cousin, American by birth, and at that time a physician in New York, head of the German Hospital there, suggested that he come to the United States, and he realized that this was what he had been wanting to do for a long time. He arrived in 1895, and at once became an American citizen.

He established a studio on East 57th street, and for the next 25 years this was his headquarters while he explored the Maine coast, painting its rocks and tides, traveled again and again to Tahiti and other far places. His first exhibition of paintings was held in 1908 at the Macbeth and Milch galleries, in New York, and established his success. In the intervening years there have been many Ritschel showings in all parts of the country. Two have been held at the Biltmore in Los Angeles, and two at the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco.

In 1912 he was elected to the National Academy of Design, and by that time he had discovered Carmel. His first studio here was a remodeled farmhouse on property at the Highlands belonging to Frank Devendorf, where he lived and worked for seven years before selecting the site of his present home. It was Mrs. Ritschel, he says, who added the garden and insisted upon transforming the original goat path that struggled up the cliffs to the door into a graceful winding stair.

And there was other handiwork of Nora Ritschel which he brought out and displayed proudly: tiny, graceful dancing figures modeled in wax; a figure of Christ scarce-

School Board Hires 2 More Teachers at Special Meeting

At a special meeting of the school board at the high school Friday night the employment of two new teachers was approved — Miss Alberta Rae Beeson who will teach English classes at the high school and Miss Mary A. Spayd who will take a class at Sunset.

Miss Beeson who received her B. S. from Northwestern in 1929 and an M.A. from the University of Southern California in 1933 comes from San Mateo high school where she has taught English and dramatic classes for over nine years.

Miss Spayd, a graduate of San Diego Normal School and the holder of a B. S. from Northwestern has taught since 1923 in Oakland schools.

Two other new teachers have ly two inches tall, exquisitely formed; and colorful, imaginative paintings — a not-to-be-sneezed-at one man show for Mrs. Ritschel, who has never studied art in her life. In the atmosphere of the Ritschel studio all this seemed scarcely amazing. It is his philosophy to recognize no limitations, to approach only nature with awe and humility.

"I haven't yet started to paint!" says William Ritschel, N. A.

been hired by the board in the past two weeks, Miss Harriette Sheldon, new girls' physical education teacher at the high school and Frank L. McClain, who will be principal of the adult school next fall.

Gold Dust Twins, Peter and Thomas, Ready to Rake in City Tax Ante

At the same time City Tax Collector Thomas Hefling announced that all other 1943 city taxes would become delinquent after May 5, City Clerk Peter Mawdsley dropped 98 unsecured personal property tax bills in the mail which don't become delinquent until August.

Last year, $87,254 was collected from the unsecured list which exclusively comes due and delinquent at a different time than other city taxes, and covers business stock and equipment that is not secured by real estate. This year, though there is a slight drop in the number of names on the list, there is an increase in the amount of property in several cases that will offset any tax loss from last year's business casualties.

"I haven't made any general increase in assessments," Mawdsley said. "On the contrary, in 17 cases the assessments have been lowered because of frozen stock and war conditions. And we don't expect any delinquencies. There weren't any last year on the unsecured list."

The same faith in the promptness of Carmel people in paying their taxes was expressed by Hefling when he issued his reminder of the May 5 delinquency date on all other city taxes. He pointed out a steady decrease in percent of delinquency, 3.51 per cent in 1939 against 2.59 per cent in 1942.

"This year there won't be any delinquency except in the case of people who simply forget, or those who are making so darn much money they don't care if they do have to pay delinquency penalties," Hefling said.

Nevertheless, he was depressed. He passed over a clipping a friend had sent him from a Montana newspaper. It told of a check for $4,200,000 and $300,000 in bonds turned into the Montana bureau of internal revenue in payment of a single tax bill, that on the estate of Margaret P. Daly, widow of Montana's copper king.

"Makes me feel like I'm running a penny ante game here," gloomed Hefling.

Gordon Ewig Wins Honors as Speaker in Forensic League

Gordon Ewig, representing Stanford University in the Annual Pacific Forensic League Conference held in Los Angeles on April 14 and 15, won second place in the oratorical division with his speech "Return to Self," a speech embodying the theme of man's inability to overcome the overwhelming forces that seek to engulf him so long as he fails to look upward in appeal to a higher force. The two winners—Gordon and the representative from the University of Idaho, were asked to repeat their speeches on several occasions in and around Los Angeles during their stay, and both the judges and Dr. Kleinschmidt, president of U. S. C., paid high compliments to the winners.

Gordon arrives Sunday to spend Easter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ewig, bringing with him Miss Virginia Crichton of Piedmont, a Delta Gamma from U.C., to be their house guest over the holidays.

Mayor Appeals for V-Drive Backing

If the people of Carmel are to meet their full measure of responsibility, they must loan their government every cent not needed for the essentials of living—and we have to revise downward our ideas about what are essentials. In other words, you and you and I must go on an all-out war basis.

Carmel has contributed heavily of our youth in the armed forces. We must contribute heavily with our dollars to bring them back. Our efforts on the home front must be made by subscribing to this drive. Many of our citizens have contributed but many more will have to get busy to meet the quota of $276,000.00 set for our community. Of this sum $125,000. has been raised.

I earnestly hope Carmel will sound a patriotic note in this public undertaking and I ask everyone of you—please make your purchases of bonds immediately by going to your bank, postoffice or contact me personally to assist you in this service.

Let us all take to our hearts the theme of this campaign:

"They Give Their Lives, You Lend Your Money." — P. A. McCreery.

Red Cross News

There are boys who cannot leave Fort Ord Easter, because they are in the hospital. Some of them cannot even leave their beds, and for them Red Cross wants small flowers, suitable for making into individual bedside bouquets.

Others are convalescing and able to walk about and go to the auditorium, where large flowers or sprays or branches, will be used to decorate. Whatever you have growing and would like to have, these boys enjoy will find a spot in the Station Hospital at Fort Ord where it will bring beauty and cheer. Please bring donations to Red Cross Headquarters on Dolores near Eighth by eleven o'clock on Saturday morning, April 24th. Here the Junior Red Cross girls from Carmel high school will fashion the small bouquets which will be distributed throughout the hospital on Easter Sunday by the Gray Ladies. The large flowers and sprays and branches will be used by the Gray Ladies to decorate the recreation auditorium for the Easter celebration that is being planned for the patients. If you have no way of delivering your flowers to Red Cross Headquarters, please call Mrs. John Gilbert, chairman of Carmel Gray Ladies, at Carmel 264, and she will make arrangements for collecting them.

The latest thing in dress ornaments has arrived at Merle's Treasure Chest! Very clever pins in the shape and form of famous women's heads are now on display, fashioned by the imaginative skill of Jean Seyeux, formerly with Jean Patou for many years. Monsieur Seyeux has made use of felt, glass, brilliants, curtain cord, sequins, ceramics and many other similar objects to simulate the likenesses of Queen Elizabeth, Lillian Russell and a host of others. Lillian Russell especially is striking with a red sequin hat and boa, golden green silken hair and two tiny diamonds in her ears.

Other Jean Seyeux creations are the ear-ring and pin sets of felt with small blue arrows piercing a red and white target, and a variety of different motifs. Adorable complements to your new spring outfit.—K. M.

John Gilbert Tells Of Warden Setup

fense. To a great many people it seems unlikely that Carmel will be bombed. There is certainly no military purpose to be served in so doing. But then neither was there in the bombing of the little English hamlet on which the Germans have unloaded bombs when driven from strategic targets. It is certainly unlikely that Carmel will be bombed but it is possible, and because of that bare possibility it would be complacent folly to allow the protective services of Civilian Defense to lapse.

The need for Civilian Defense, with the Block Wardens amplifying the regular city forces of Police and Fire, arises from both military and civilian reasons. In this war with the aeroplanes supplementing the cannon the range of the enemies' projectiles is measured not in thousands of feet but in thousands of miles and it is utterly impossible for the military to provide protection for all possible enemy objectives and on the home firing line the block warden must take the place of the soldier. And just as it is impossible for the military to protect completely our entire coast line it is impossible for any city to have fire and police protection adequate to meet the demands of an air raid. Civilian Defense through its block wardens would have to step into the gap and prevent the enemy from realizing the full measure of destruction and panic.

The organization of Civilian Defense has its central authority in Washington and under the direction of Civilian Defense the country is divided into regions. We are in the 9th region and have been requested to draw up and submit a plan within the framework of the National Civilian Defense system. This has been done by the Carmel Civilian Defense Council and the plan, in the C. D. office, may be seen by any responsible citizen.

If Carmel were subjected to enemy bombing the entire protective services of the Civilian Defense, police, fire, street crews, block wardens etc., would immediately go into action as outlined in the plan. The block warden knows all the services which are available, how to call them and his job is to render every assistance where assistance is needed. His job is not to be a policeman or a fireman but to be of assistance to both. He has no authority to issue orders but must get things done by request alone. The better he knows his block or blocks and the better people in them know him the greater will be his efficiency. You can help yourself and your neighbors by making sure you know your warden and that he knows your special needs or abilities to serve in an emergency.

We Can't Hold Out Any Longer

For two weeks we have been trying to control ourselves. It is a universally accepted axiom that nothing is more painful than conversation about how smart and superior are our children, but after the school issue, the fact is so patent that any literate person with a subscription to the Pine Cone or a nickel to pick up a stray copy of that issue could not escape realizing that Carmel's children are a bit more gifted than average and that Carmel schools are superior in that the faculty is acute enough to allow these children to develop their talents unimpeded, which is about the greatest service teachers can render their charges.

Certainly, any town of the size of ours might produce one or two youngsters of fifth, sixth or seventh grade age with the intelligence, initiative and courage to make their own arrangements to interview a stranger, conduct that interview and then write it up in an interesting and competent manner. But how many towns of our size could produce twelve who could do it as these Sunset children did for the school issue? In addition to the interviews and special assignments, the writing throughout the paper was of high order from a well-constructed, suspenseful short story written by a high school student to the amusing little squibs produced by the first graders.

The high school students who quietly and self-reliantly combed the town for news, wrote it up in this office without fuss or excitement and without need of coaching or interference produced a job of work beyond what one has a right to expect from the young people of their age and limited experience. The art and poetry throughout the paper were another indication of talent and

China Adventures Told by Lions' Club Guest

Natives no longer take pot shots at their leaders in China, Captain William M. Nethery, Pacific Grove, told the Carmel Lions Club at its dinner meeting Tuesday night at the Pine Inn.

Guest speaker for the evening, Capt. Nethery, a doctor on the staff of the Station Hospital at Fort Ord, described his experiences in China where he went in 1933 to serve as an interne in one of the great hospitals of that country. During his internship, Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek was a patient for two months, also a wounded farmer who, as a convalescent, was carried away from the hospital in hand barrow powered by a friend, and who paid his doctor bill with a brace of pheasants.

During his stay in China, Capt. Nethery made an extended trip through the country and on into Manchuria and Japan. Sleeping accommodations on the train were twenty-foot square rice mats. The people of China, like the people of the United States grow tall in the better nourished north and more stunted in the poorer south, he observed. Climate as well as agricultural conditions parallel this country, he said.

The government of China, he added, has become more stable, and sniping at officials has ceased to be a national pastime.

Other guests at the meeting were Warren Knapp and Jim Cooke of Carmel, Jack Eagal of Stockton.

ability.
Judged by adult standards the issue was good. Taking into consideration the age of the youngsters who produced it, it was remarkable. — Wilma Cook.

Witch Comes to Bad End in Big Super Production

And so the bad witch was shoved into the oven, Hansel and Gretel were saved, the gingerbread people danced for joy, and my goodness wasn't it a perfectly delightful and thoroughly satisfying way to top off school week with a three act opera written, sung and produced by the first grades and the kindergarten and put on Friday afternoon at Sunset auditorium for the entertainment of the crowd of adults that invariably turn out to applaud kindergarten and first grade productions!

What made it such a superior offering was the fact that it was a community effort. Estelle Billington's first grade wrote the script and their teacher chose the cast and designed the costumes. Stella Schnabel and her first grade were responsible for the music, and she and Miss Eletteth McQuilkin, kindergarten teacher, created the gingerbread house of the Third Act that was as much a star of the show as any of the performers, what with its all day suckers, ice cream sundaes, and such trimmings, that the Brothers Grimm never heard of but certainly would have included if they had.

The cast made up entirely of three-foot Barrymores and Bette Davises not only charmed the audience by every gesture but could be heard as well when they delivered their lines! Hansel was interpreted by Billy Powell. Donell Wilson enacted Gretel. Ann Pinkerton was the witch, Joan Kernell, the mother, Richard Loyd, father, Suzanne Montmorcency, grandmother.

The sweet-voiced soloist was Patricia Doolittle, and her angel convoy consisted of Sue Mikilak, Ronna Herlofsen, Hannah Hibbs, Rae Jean Jones, Judith O'Rear, Mariana Dell, Dianne Duckworth, Joann Leslie, Marguerite Schmutz, Margaret Ann Reese, Linda Cass, Albertine Weinman, Alice Ferrante.

The handsome gingerbread people in their brown costumes were Gardiner Patrick, Skipper Walters, Danny Brosman, Jimmy Clark, Richard Whiteside, David Castagna, Gretchen Herron, Carol Shields, Elaine Shore, Shirley DeAmaral, Loretta Berman, Dixie Rose Wood.

Stage hands whose activities out of the limelight contributed to the attractiveness of the production were: Phillip Yeats, Bobby Amiel, Birnie Johnson, Paul Yementes, Alan Knight and John Jump. Two seventh grade boys, Bob Barry and Bob Johnson, helped out with the heavy work.

Mary Crowther

Mary Stanworth Crowther, wife of Dr. James E. Crowther, Pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel-by-the-Sea, passed away in the Monterey Hospital on Palm Sunday evening after an illness of six years.

She was born on Valentine's Day in the village of Worsthorne, England. At the age of fifteen, though severely afflicted with asthma, she took charge of the household for her orphaned brothers.

From her earliest years she was known for her earnest and cheery devotion to Christ and His Church. As a girl she was known as "Lady Mary," and her gentleness and kindness increased as her afflictions multiplied.

With winsome grace she brought her future husband, then a lad of seventeen, into the Christian life, and a little later urged him to become a Lay Preacher while working ten hours a day in the cotton mill.

After their marriage they came together to the United States to enter the ministry of the Methodist Church. Side by side they went through college and theological seminary in charge of student churches.

When Dr. Crowther became a secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, she took typing and shorthand and gave her services without salary as his personal secretary, and traveled with him in various parts of the world.

They were not only united in wedlock, but in a kindred devotion to the cause of human welfare and to the church. During the forty-eight years of her husband's preaching career, nearly forty-two of which have been in the ministry in the United States, she has exercised an incalculable influence for good. There are literally thousands who will remember her as the great lover of folks. Of her it may be truly said, "Mary hath chosen the good part which shall not be taken away from her."

The last rites, private and simple in accordance with her wishes, were conducted by Dr. Crowther.

Big Turnout at Business Meeting Backs Shore Bill

Over forty members turned out for the Business Association dinner last week at Pine Inn and went on record as approving the bills before the state legislature to appropriate funds for the purchase of coastal lands to be converted into state parks.

The resolution was passed after a speech by Corum Jackson, member of the Shore Line Planning Committee for this county, in which he pointed out that this district, as well as the state as a whole, would benefit by the proposed appropriation of $6,000,000, as the plan now includes purchase of a strip of land from Carmel Point to Point Lobos, and sections of Monterey and Pacific Grove Beach.

Entertainment before the business meeting was furnished by the High School string quartet directed by Jaffrey Harris, and made up of Douglas Calley, David Wilson, Willette Torras and Eleanor Smith.

Other business consisted of the announcement that the matter of closing the Carmel River mouth to fishing during August, September and October, supported by the Business Association, would have a hearing before the Fish and Game Commission early in the summer. The Association approved a policy of holding dinner meetings every other month rather than quarterly. Eben Whittlesey was appointed chairman of the committee that is to approach the city for money to help keep the Information Bureau open. Report on the membership drive indicated that the enrollment had reached 63.

HOW THE OTHER 99.9% LIVES

By PROF. ROLF L. BOLIN

Did you ever see an aardvark? Did you ever see a coelacanth? Did you ever see a Gaboon viper? Did you ever see a babiroussa, a houou, or a zibet? No? Well, never mind. Along the seashore of the Monterey Peninsula you may, by lying on your tummy on wet seaweed with your nose an inch or two from the surface of almost any tide pool, see Lilliputian animals many times as strange. By rolling over a rock in the intertidal region you may become acquainted with beasts much more fantastic and colorful. BUT BE A GOOD CITIZEN AND ROLL THE ROCK BACK WHEN YOU HAVE HAD YOUR LOOK!

As one wanders down over the rocky shore toward the receding water at ebb tide, almost the first marine animal to be met is the acorn barnacle. Dense colonies of them form a horizontal band along the shore above the level of the highest seaweeds. They are not spectacular or conspicuous, in fact they look so much like the granite to which they are anchored that they are apt to be overlooked, but they are entertaining beasts, nevertheless.

In the rich intertidal region competition is tough, and rugged individualists are apt to survive at the expense of their weaker brethren. Seeking a peaceful life, the high-tide barnacles have moved up into a zone which most of the militarists consider to be unsuitable Lebensraum. Here these typically marine animals live in a territory that is dry land about 90% of the time, which of course poses some problems.

They have to keep moist. If you or I wanted to keep something wet we would put it in a bottle and insert the cork to prevent evaporation. The barnacle wants to keep his body moist and he has cleverly put it in a limey bottle (his shell) and corked it tightly with calcareous opercular plates. Thus he sits snugly and dreams in the sun until the tide covers him, whereupon he opens his bottle and begins industriously to kick tiny floating plants and animals from the water into his mouth with his feet. Splashing water over them for four or five minutes will usually induce them to go into action.

The corked bottle of the barnacle is almost as good protection against marine gourmets as it is against the drying action of the sun, but in biology as in war, improvement of armor induces the enemy to improve his weapons and methods of attack. A common resident of the barnacle beds is the unicorn shell, about the size of a man's finger joint. This rascal has a short spine on the margin of its shell and employs it in a most efficient and relentless manner. The snail sits patiently waiting on a mass of barnacles with its spine poised like a fish spear. When the tide comes in and an unsuspecting barnacle opens up in order to catch his dinner, the snail thrusts its spine between the edges of the barnacle's opercular plates to prevent them from closing again — a sort of foot-in-the-door technique — and then, inserting a long protusible proboscis, the snail proceeds to make a dinner of the would-be diner. A curious human investigating the region may often, by placing his eye close to the rock and then lifting the snail, surprise the villain at his meal.

Since the barnacle is dead and gone let us forget him and consider some of his living friends, instead. At the same level or slightly higher on the rocks are numerous periwinkles, little snails about the size of the eraser on a pencil. They also have the problem of keeping moist for long periods when the water does

ONLY ON APRIL NIGHTS

*If there were time enough, if time were tame,
Bounding from the woods when you called his name,
I would go back.*

*I would go back and find the quiet street
You said was always listening for my feet,
When twilight came.*

*I would go back to touch the meeting-wall,
Where once you leaned in your grandmother's shawl
Against my heart.*

*If there were time enough—but years have run
Like startled deer beyond the cry of one
Who bids them stay.*

*Only on April nights will they sweep back
To the woods' edge in a silvery pack
Of fragile grace.*

—KATHRYNE E. SCOVILLE.

SO LONG THE DAY

*So long the day is left you are a peer,
You are Herodotus and history,
You are the sun and weather of the year,
God's care and heir, his only legatee.*

*What light in the bleak murk to break the dark?
What warmth to shelter, what pity, mercy, rue
Will be your portion for a fellow's cark?
The day dims, man, and you have work to do.*

*Take what is left, it never is too late
This side of time, and sound, and the sweet grace
Of heart will be the part of your estate,
The weightiest to justify your place.*

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT.

DRIVEN

*This is my hunger:
To live life more slowly;
And this my prayer:
To taste each moment wholly.*

*This is my terror:
Life grown thin of savour,
Too hurried to give forth
The rich and fruited flavour.*

REVIEWS

not even splash into the upper intertidal region, and they have solved it in the same way as did the barnacles. Their shells are bottles and each one can be tightly closed by a horny operculum on the back of the owner's body. It is, however, obvious to anyone who has ever stopped to look at a snail that it can not hold to the rock by means of its extended foot and cork the bottle at the same time; it is also obvious that if the bottle is not corked the snail will rapidly dry out. These clever beasts simply secrete a ring of mucus which glues the shell to the rock and then fold up and sleep. Only a few marine snails are able to do this and all others, or at least most others have to live at a lower level and meet stiffer competition.

The limpets provide the well-known exception to prove the rule. They cannot secrete sticky mucus and still certain species live as high on the rocks as do the periwinkles. They have no opercula with which to leak-proof their shells and, at first blush, would seem to be out of place so high and dry; but they are not above accepting substitutes and have used the rock upon which they sit as stoppers for their particular bottles. On examination, one of the high-tide limpets may be seen to fit perfectly the rock to which it is attached; it would be impossible to insert a needle under the shell and evaporation is kept at a minimum. This would all be very well for the limpet, if when the tide came in, it could emulate the barnacle by straining food from the water. However, limpets browse on the meager meadows of single-celled plants that form a thin film over the rocks and must wander afield in search of food when the tide comes in. Since the minute topography of the rocks is infinitely varied, no two spots are exactly similar and there is only one spot in all the world that will fit any particular limpet. He must of necessity return to his home after each foraging expedition or he simply won't fit. On arrival he orients himself exactly as he was before leaving, and then he squats. How he squats! He squats with about 70 pounds of force for every square inch that he covers, and if you don't believe it — just try to pull him off!

A sad story comes to mind at this point. Once upon a time a scientist at the Hopkins Marine Station was investigating the habits of these critters. He played all sorts of tricks on them in order to find out how they ticked. The nastiest one consisted in chiseling away a limpet's home spot while he was out browsing. On his return the limpet was entirely flabbergasted. It was pitiful to see the tears in his eyes as he hunted for his domicile. For a couple of days he tried spot after spot in the adjacent area but found none to be satisfactory and at last he disappeared completely. It is feared that he succumbed to a nervous breakdown.

Space does not permit our meeting more than these few of the drab and commonplace inhabitants of the highest intertidal region; neighbors that may be visited dry-shod and without danger to Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. Adventurous souls equipped with boots or sneakers and old duds will be richly repaid for the effort of venturing into the lower and damper layers of the intertidal zone. Here they will meet red and yellow and purple and green sponges, shrimps that make loud popping noises by snapping their fingers, worms with brilliantly colored tentacles, crabs that camouflage themselves by planting miniature gardens on their backs, sea slugs more colorful than fuchsias, fish with suckers on their bellies, and many other interesting citizens too numerous to mention. Here the life is much richer and more entertaining, but to tell of it in detail would be like spoiling a novel by prematurely revealing the plot. One has to see the animals to really believe in them and to enjoy them to the utmost.

Armory Boys Need More Girls to Get Governor's Award

He came bounding into the Pine Cone Cymbal office with a new bill of goods this week. It was all about how he and his two buddy Navy recruiters in Salinas would certainly like to send a whole flock of girls from Monterey county to the big swearing in in San Francisco, May 13, as a matter of personal pride and patriotism.

It's the job of these three blue-jacket musketeers to get girls lined up for the SPARS and the WAVES. So far, twenty charming prospects have put their names down on the application blanks, but one thing and another delay the final closing of the deal: a birth certificate that has to be sent for, a record of the two necessary years of high school education that she thought she put in the right hand tray of Aunt Almira's trunk but now it appears she must have given it to Cousin

George to put in the safe deposit box.

Meanwhile, May 13 is getting nearer and nearer, and the boys sit and palpitate because they certainly want to get some of these girls in under the tape to be welcomed officially by Governor Warren at the mass swearing in ceremony in Civic Center, because every city of Northern California will be represented, and the district with the highest percentage of enlistees will get a special Navy award from the governor which the three blue boys at the Armory wouldn't treat with contempt if it came their way.

"What are they waiting for?" said this week's visiting musketeer. "What a job for a girl! $136.50 to $220.00 a month and free board and room. A hundred bucks to spend on clothes, and they get indoctrinated at Hunter College which is a school you don't find people going around looking down their noses at."

There's still time to sign up at the Salinas Armory and get in on the May 13 party in San Francisco if you have that birth certificate reasonably handy and want to help the boys win their Navy E or its equivalent.

Plane Spotters See Films, Hear Emerson Speak

About 150 ground observers from the Yankee Point and Cypress Point posts, along with a large contingent from the Seaside, Pacific Grove, Bixby Bridge and three Carmel Valley posts, packed the auditorium at the new Walter Colton school Tuesday night to see a group of educational films shown under the sponsorship of the Fourth Fighter Command.

Three films were run off: one giving instruction in plane recognition, another showing the operation of the filter boards, and one giving a dramatic representation of the bombing of China. Following the movies, Captain Emerson, military head of the observation corps of this area, told of the vital part the observers play in the defense of the coastal region. He was introduced by Charles Shepherd, county director.

and Marjorie Wermuth, she also led the community singing which closed the first and eminently successful Girls' Jinks.

The Jinks was sponsored by the Leaders' Club, under the direction of Leila Gulmurt. Each year group participated in the preparations, the art class furnishing attractive posters with which the gym walls were decorated. During the evening the mothers had an opportunity to meet Harriette Sheldon, new physical education teacher, who is replacing Leila Gulmurt.

Guests Join in Jinks Fun at HS; Originals Staged

The bleacher loads of mothers and feminine friends of the Carmel high school girls who turned out to watch the Girls' Jinks in the high school gymnasium Friday night were not allowed to stay on the sidelines to admire the handsome or bizarre costumes of their hostesses.

Following a volley ball game, the girls pounced on their audience, and drew it out onto the gym floor to participate in the grand march. Not until they had danced a Virginia reel, the polka and trailed along in the rumba line, were the mothers allowed to return to the bleachers—nor did they seem to want to.

During the breather the audience munched cookies sold by the Freshman class, and watched the dancing and singing the girls staged for their amusement. Interspersed with rhythm studies by the gymnasium class groups were a hula by Willette Torras, and a number of entertaining originals dreamed up and danced in pairs by: Rosalie Roberts and Jean Podmore; Clara Warner and Caroline Cory; Irene Erickson and Betty Powell; Mary Ellen Laird and Suzetta Cecil; Wylene Jones and Ruth Funchess. These were followed by two improvised dances, Africo-Cuban, and Spanish, by Leila Gulmurt, exceedingly popular gym teacher whose performance was a farewell to the girls, as she was married the following day. SNOW PATROL at J-7

Like the sweep of the hands around the clock, day and night men of this company's Snow Patrol have spent the winter in the high places where hydroelectric power is born. Up and down canyons and ravines and skirting lakes and forebays these men in lonely vigil have followed the mountain freshets, the flumes, ditches and power lines.

SOME OF THESE MEN help maintain feeding stalls for deer in cooperation with the U. S. Fish and Game Commission. From their outpost stations, too, they make daily reports to the U. S. Weather Bureau as to wind velocity, depth of snow, moisture content of the snow pack and other invaluable data.

This last winter there has been added seriousness and determination as they have gone about their tasks. Many have sons in the service. They know the importance of their work today as never before—that there must be no interruption that can be humanly prevented of the flow of electric power that comes down from the mountains to the farms and cities below.

Think of these men of the Snow Patrol when you flip on an electric switch or see the hands of your electric clock sweep around the dial. Day and night they are helping make certain that the lights will not be put out in this part of the world.

With Gardenias and Bouvardia

The wedding of Miss Adaline Guth to Technical Sergeant Howard Vernon Ryan took place in the chapel of the Presidio of Monterey at 8 o'clock last Saturday evening, April 17.

Dr. James E. Crowther, rector of the Church of the Wayfarer, officiated, and Private George Cory was organist. The chapel decorations, an arrangement of white hydrangeas and calla lilies, were in charge of Mrs. Mary Bishop of Pacific Grove.

The bride, in white marquisette, with sweetheart neckline and draped skirt, wore a coronet of lace and fingertip veil of net, and carried a shower bouquet of white gardenias and bouvardia. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Evelyn Jane Maschmeyer, of Hollywood, as maid of honor, in Nile green marquisette, with shoulder length veil and bouquet of yellow roses, violets and white stocks. The two bridesmaids were: Miss Genevieve Yarbrough, a cousin from Kingman, Arizona, and Miss Anthea McEwen of Pacific Grove. They wore dresses of blue marquisette, with coronets and shoulder length veils and carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink roses, carnations and pale pink stocks with shower ribbons. Miss Frances Passailaigue, in yellow, with a corsage of gardenias, was vocalist and sang Irving Berlin's "Always" and "I Love You Truly."

Best man was Sergeant James P. Flannigan. Ushers were Sergeants George Aye and Erwin J. Succetti.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Everett A. Littlefield, an old friend of the family. Her mother, Mrs. Edith Prior Guth of Pacific Grove, wore a two-piece dress of egg blue, with navy hat and shoes and white accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception for the family and members of the bridal party was held at the Guth home on Walnut street, where amid decorations of green smilax, pale pink roses and snowballs, the traditional cake, two-tiered and topped by tiny figures of a soldier and bride, was cut. Present for the occasion was Adaline's cousin, Dale Prior of San Francisco.

Mrs. Ryan's going-away costume was of powder blue, with white accessories. Following a brief honeymoon, she plans to continue her work at the Monterey post for the duration, and the couple will for the present make their home in Pacific Grove.

The new Mrs. Ryan is the daughter of the late Charles Guth, and for seven years was a part of the Carmel Pine Cone organization.

Bridge Meeting

The bridge section of the Carmel Woman's Club meets on Monday, April 26, at 2:00 p.m. in Hotel La Ribera. Hostesses for the afternoon are Mrs. Alfred Wheldon, Mrs. Harry Clement, Miss Agnes Knight and Miss Beatrice Armstrong.

Home from Dominican

Journeying together from San Rafael, where they are students at Dominican College, Peggy Doud and Edith Elizalde arrived in Carmel this week to spend their Easter holidays with their respective families.

New Carmel Residents

Lt. and Mrs. Joseph F. Robbins of Boston, who have been making their home in Burlingame, have recently taken a house in Carmel. Lt. Robbins has just returned from active overseas duty and is now stationed at the Monterey Air Base. Since their arrival, the young couple have taken an interested part in the activities of Pebble Beach and the Racquet Club.

Antioch Visitor Here

Mrs. H. A. West of Antioch is a guest at the home of Mrs. R. K. Turner. Mrs. West is a cousin of Admiral Turner.

Lt. Sargent at Big Sur

Lieutenant Frank Goodwin Sargent, U. S. N., brother of Lynda Sargent, is stopping over for a visit in Big Sur during an official trip to the West Coast.

Robinson Jeffers a Grandfather

Word came last weekend to Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Jeffers that their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donnan Jeffers, are the parents of a baby daughter, Candida Call.

She was born on the morning of Saturday, April 17, in Vanesville, Ohio. Her mother is the former Patricia Grant of Vanesville, and made many friends in Carmel during the time that she was a student at Douglas School.

Family Reunion

A reunion of the feminine members and the in-laws of the Young family occurred this week when Mrs. William Buchholz (Ethel Young) and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Erwin Buchholz with her children, Joan and Robert, came down from San Francisco to spend the week visiting with Mrs. George Young up the valley, and with Mrs. Mary E. King in Carmel.

Bonds for Dancing

The Monday and Wednesday "dance for exercise" group, meeting between five and six at the Carmel Art association gallery, under the leadership of Peggy Rees and Betty Horst, has voted to share in the purchase of a war bond toward the Artists for Victory drive now under way.

Katherine Beaton Here

Miss Katherine Beaton, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Beaton of Junipero and Ninth, arrived from San Francisco on Saturday, bringing with her Miss Anne Stickle of Modesto. Katherine Beaton, who graduated from the University of California last June, is now holding a position in San Francisco. Her friend, Miss Stickle, is a senior at U. C. and was recently honored by being elected the first president of the beautiful new dormitory, Stern Hall, the interior decoration of which is the work of Mrs. Frances Elkins of Monterey. The house mother is Mrs. Green, also of Monterey. Miss Stickle departed on Wednesday, but Katherine will remain in Carmel over Easter.

Ballroom Class Party

Members of the class in ballroom dancing conducted by Carolita (Miss Carolita Plein) will assemble this evening at the Girl Scout House for a party. Feature of the evening will be prize dances, and the young guests will include Jackie Work, Shirley Sousa, Katherine Van Houten, Betty Dougherty, Peggy Riker, Du Val Roberts, Rita Hazeltine, Sunny Cook, Rod Dewar, Owen Greenan, Jimmie Campbell and Richard Mulholland.

Tea for Mrs. McLeod

Mrs. Edward Kuster was hostess on Saturday at a tea given in honor of Mrs. Pohli McLeod who is now making her home at Hotel La Playa. Those who gathered to meet the newcomer were Miss Helene Lehmann and Mr. Arthur Lehmann, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Wurzmann, Mrs. Marie Gordon and Miss Margaret Waybur.

De Witt Blamer III Christening

Mrs. De Witt Blamer is spending this weekend in the Bay region in order to be present for the christening of her grandson, De Witt Blamer III. Duty prevents Captain Blamer from journeying up for the ceremony which will take place at the Hayward Episcopal Church, on Easter Sunday.

Gulmert-McBride

On 3:30, Sunday afternoon, April 18th, the Church of the Wayfarer was filled to capacity and overflowing by the friends and well-wishers of Miss Leila Gulmert and Captain Melville A. McBride, gathered to witness their marriage ceremony. High school students and faculty members were there in force, expressing the deep affection which Miss Gulmert has won for herself during the three years she has served as physical education instructor in Carmel high school; present also were the many friends she has made by her hours of service in the local USO—a gala audience, bright spring raiment interspersed with the trig uniforms of Captain McBride's fellow-officers who had journeyed to Carmel for the wedding.

Rev. James E. Crowther officiated at the impressive double ring ceremony, and the bride, very lovely indeed in her gown of white lace and fingertip veil of tulle, with bouquet of white gardenias and orchids, was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Gustave Gulmert of San Jose. Among the receiving party also were the bride's mother and brother, Gustave Gulmert, Jr.

Miss Jean Staffebach of the Sunset school faculty was her attendant, wearing a dress of yellow and carrying a bouquet of yellow flowers. Colonel Bryce Custer, an old family friend of Captain McBride, who has known him since his boyhood in Munroe, Michigan, was best man. Elmer Smith, a junior at high school, was at the organ and accompanied the high school girls' choir in their singing of "I Love You Truly" under the leadership of Miss Stella Schnabel, of the Sunset faculty.

Following the ceremony, Dr. Crowther spoke a few impressive words in tribute to the bride and pointed out the symbolism of this wedding, which unites natives of the two Americas—for Miss Gulmert was born in Lima, Peru—in its relationship to Pan-Americanism. Then the bride and groom greeted their friends in the church garden before proceeding to the reception held in the home on Carpenter street and Ninth which has been shared for the past year by Miss Gulmert, Miss Staffebach and Miss Blanche Walsh. About twenty guests were present at the reception, partaking of the cake, cut in traditional manner with Captain McBride's sabre, and a champagne toast to the couple's happiness.

After a weekend spent at the Highlands, Captain and Mrs. McBride left for San Francisco, where they will make their home among a little colony of officers and their wives for the next few weeks until Captain McBride's duties take him to Fort Benning, Georgia. Enroute to Georgia, they will stop over for a visit with the groom's parents in Munroe, Michigan.

Deadline for Artists

The deadline for the submission of canvasses in the forthcoming exhibit of Artists for Victory is April 26. Paintings have already been received from Martin Baer, Frank Myers, Mrs. A. Acton Hall, Jules Flobert and Maxine Albro. This contest is open to all artists, whether or not they hold memberships in the Carmel Art association. A dollar bill must accompany the entry, toward the purchase of war stamps and bonds.

Sgt. Royden Martin on Leave

Sergeant Royden Martin arrived in Carmel Monday morning, on furlough from service in the desert, where he is engaged in camouflage work. Between now and the first of May, when his leave expires, Sgt. Martin has planned a busy schedule. He has been commissioned to paint three portraits, and will also see the framing of his latest watercolors, records of his past three months on the desert. In addition, he will celebrate a birthday and witness the final performance of "From Rags to Riches" at the First Theatre, in Monterey, where his wife, Katie Martin, is now appearing in the role of heroine.

Silver Tea

Mrs. Robert E. Osborne, president of the Junipero Serra Mothers' Club announces a Silver Tea to be held at the La Ribera Hotel, Wednesday, April 28, from 3 to 5 p.m.

A drawing for a $25 War Bond will take place under the supervision of Mrs. Charles McAuley and Mrs. E. B. Elliott.

Presiding over the tea tables will be Mrs. Joseph A. Hooper and Miss Mary A. Reardon. Sandwiches, cakes and cookies will be provided by the members of the club.

Officers of the club comprise in addition to Mrs. Osborne, Mrs. R. B. Stoney, vice-president; Mrs. W. D. Powell, secretary and Mrs. Roman Neumann, treasurer. They are delighted with the progress their children are making under the instruction of the Sisters of Notre Dame at the new Villa Angelica school. The Silver Tea is for the benefit of the school, to assist in maintaining the present transportation.

The public is cordially invited.

Sundays at the Gallery

Sunday afternoon record concerts at the Carmel Art association gallery continue to be popular, not only among resident music lovers, but among the music-hungry service men. Officers and privates can be seen sitting side by side on the gallery benches, or in the sunny patio, or strolling through the rooms, combining their view of the paintings on exhibit with listening to the strains of both classical and modern music. Informality prevails, and the audiences choose their own favorites from among the many albums generously loaned by Carmel collectors, among whom are Miss Marjorie Warren, Mrs. Carol Steinbeck, Corp. and Mrs. Floyd Clark and Mrs. Elizabeth Cass, the gallery curator.

Fun with Birds

Mrs. Laurel Reynolds, nature photographer, was a Carmel visitor last week, a guest at Hollow Hills Farm, and through the courtesy of Noel Sullivan, Carmel high school students were given the opportunity of seeing at the school Mrs. Reynolds' beautiful technicolor film which she calls, "Fun with Birds." The study of birds grew, she explained, from a hobby of her husband, to the chief interest of the whole family, and in the pictures, which entranced her young audience, one could watch the family as it attracted birds to the garden, made pets of them and followed them through fields and swamps.

There are 70 different varieties depicted—with close-ups of each species—not exotic and rare birds, but those we are familiar with from the humming bird to the great white pelican, yet rarely take the time to study.

Musical Art Plans

The Musical Art Society plans to hold its next concert on Sunday, May 2, at 3 p.m. in the music room of the Carmel high school. Private Edward Mattos, post organist at the Monterey Presidio and assistant to the chaplain, will be the guest pianist, and the Cypress Singers, a group sponsored by the Pacific Grove Adult school under the leadership of Mr. Rue Manhire, will present a program of songs.

For the benefit of those to whom transportation is a problem in connection with the Musical Art concerts, arrangements are in charge of Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel, Telephone Carmel 1705W.

Opens Pebble Beach Home

Mrs. Dorothy Orcutt, who has been living at Pine Inn for the past months, reopened her Pebble Beach home yesterday as part of the Easter week holiday plans of her daughter, Alicia, here from Dominican College with her schoolmate guest, Ann Folger. The plans include an all-day party given by Alicia for her friends, at which the time will be divided between luncheon and outdoor activities at the Racquet Club and an evening of supper and dancing at the Orcutt home.

Food and Flowers Subjects of Two Spring Courses

Spring is here! Two new courses in the Adult School mark its presence. First, "Flower Arrangement," to be given by Mrs. Helen Poulsen, in six meetings beginning Tuesday, April 27. The class will meet in the lunch room of the Sunset school, 3:15 to 5:15 p.m. All interested in this graceful household art are cordially invited. Bring, if convenient, a plate, saucer or platter, or other suitable receptacle; also such flowers as are available; remember that the so-called "weeds" on the roadside may be surprisingly beautiful and decorative when they are ordered and enhanced by good taste and ingenuity. But come anyway.

Then no less interesting and very timely in these days of growing rationing and shrinking "points," —Home Food Preservation. Mrs. Poulsen will give this course also, with the cooperation of Mrs. Eleanor King Hilgers, food expert with the federal government's local organization. Stress will be upon safe methods to shut out any risk of botulism and other poisonous conditions, which too often result from lack of knowledge or vigilance. The central purpose is the safe and efficient conservation of the precious products of your Victory gardens.

The Food Conservation course will begin Wednesday, April 28, 9:20 to 11:30 a.m., also in the Sunset School Lunch Room. It will continue into the summer to cover various materials as they come along.

Both courses will include lectures, demonstrations, and for those who want it, practice under the eye and with the guidance of the instructor. Accuracy, thoroughness, practicality, are the watchwords.—E. O. S.

BANDAGE ROLLERS NEEDED

Red Cross volunteer workers, now engaged in filling their second quota of bandages, are confronted with a third and even larger quota, and in order to complete it in the record time which Carmel chapter has established for itself, many more helpers will be needed at once.

No. 6891.

In the Matter of the Guardianship of the Estate of ALICIA ORCUTT, a Minor.

NOTICE OF HEARING PETI- TION TO MODIFY, AMEND AND EXTEND LEASE

MONTEREY COUNTY TRUST & SAVINGS BANK, as Guardian of the Estate of Alicia Orcutt, a Minor, having filed herein its verified petition praying for an order of this Court authorizing it to modify, amend and extend a lease now subsisting upon certain real property belonging to said estate in said petition and hereinafter described, and alleging that it will be to the advantage of said estate that the said Court make said order,—

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in said estate of Alicia Orcutt, a Minor, to appear before the above-entitled Superior Court in the Courtroom thereof in the Courthouse in the City of Salinas, State of California, on the 3rd day of May, 1943, at ten (10:00) o'clock A.M., then and there to show cause, if any they have, why said Court should not make an order authorizing said petitioner to modify, amend and extend the lease which now subsists upon the real property hereinafter described and in and to which said minor owns an undivided 1-5th interest; that said extension of said lease is to be for a period of ten (10) years, commencing on the 1st day of April, 1943, and ending on the 31st day of March, 1953, and the rental shall be at the rate of $60.00 per month up to the termination of the participation of the United States in the present war or until the President of the United States shall proclaim the present national emergency to be at an end whichever shall first occur, plus one cent (1c) per gallon for each gallon of gasoline which is delivered to the demised premises during any calendar month in excess of 6,000 gallons; subject, however, to the condition that after the expiration of the emergency mentioned above the rental for the demised premises shall be $100.00 per month, plus one cent (1c) per gallon for each gallon of gasoline which is delivered to the demised premises during any calendar month in excess of 10,000 gallons;

That the estate of said minor will be entitled to an undivided ONE-FIFTH (1-5) of said monthly rental;

That the other terms and conditions of the lease, as modified, amended and extended, are fully set out in Exhibits "A" and "B" which are attached to and made a part of said petition of said Guardian on file herein, to which petition reference is hereby made for further particulars;

Said real property is situated in the City of Monterey, County of Monterey, State of California, and is described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the Easterly line of Pacific Street distant N. 12° 34' E. 40 feet from the southwest corner of Lot 1 in Block 31 as shown on page 1 of the Official Block Book of the City of Monterey compiled by H. D. Severance 1913 and filed in the Office of the Recorder of Monterey County October 22, 1915; running thence N. 12° 34' E., along the easterly line of Pacific Street, 99.80 feet to a point on the southerly line of the United States Military Reservation; thence N. 80° 00' E. along said line (Continued on page 11)

Organ selections will include Handel's "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth" and Lotti's "Joy Fills the Morning," Alice Lee Keith at the organ.

Visitors to Carmel are especially invited to worship in This House of Prayer for All People.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

The Church of the Wayfarer will hold two Easter services next Sunday morning; the first at 9:30, and the second at eleven o'clock. The regular congregation is asked to attend the earlier service, if convenient, so as to accommodate the large number of visitors at the second service. The two services will be identical, Dr. Crowther preaching on the theme: "Sunlight on the Tomb." It is befitting that these triumphant Easter services should also be a fitting Memorial Service for the Pastor's wife, Mary Stanworth Crowther, whose earthly career ended at eventide on Palm Sunday. Elinor Smith as guest organist will play the "Overture" and "Pastoral Symphony" from Handel's "Messiah," and also "The Heavens Declare His Glory" by Beethoven. You are invited to share with us an Easter of hope and faith and triumph.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Probation after Death" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, April 25, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text will be: "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me," (Psalms 49:15).

Other Bible citations will include: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I shall fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me," (Psalms 23:4).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook,

"RAGS" CLOSES MAY 8

"Rags to Riches" goes into its twentieth and twenty-first performances tomorrow night and Sunday, April 24, 25, at the First Theater in California, State Monument, Monterey. The thrilling melodrama and jolly olio will run just twice more after this weekend, on May 1 and 8, closing on the 8th. The Sunday night performances the weeks of May 1 and 8 are being omitted to clear the way for rehearsals of "The Fatal Wedding," which will open on May 14.

When you ANSWER PROMPTLY

—you increase the effectiveness of America's war machine!

Every mile of telephone wire, every piece of equipment, is part of America's war machine. War work has given the lines more calls to handle than they have ever handled before. More wires, more switchboards could be used, but to manufacture them would take important materials away from the shooting side of war.

But the existing network can handle far more calls if each call is answered as promptly as possible.

We now handle on the Pacific Coast more than 12,400,000 calls a day. Two seconds saved on each call would enable us to handle over 160,000 more calls daily. That would be an effective contribution to the war effort.

Will you, in home or office, do what you can to help save these important seconds in telephone time?

We appreciate your co-operation.

Pine Needles

Carmel Valley home, of the Dwight Morrow Jrs. and their three children.

Following informal chats with many of the service men present at the USO, Mrs. Morrow was guest of honor at a tea served by the senior hostesses under the direction of Mrs. Willard McGraw, Mrs. Caroline Pickett pouring. A full quota of assistant and junior hostesses was present to complement their distinguished guest, and the senior hostesses who assisted for the evening were Mrs. David Anderson, Mrs. R. J. De Kemper, Mrs. Margaret Little, Mrs. E. H. Ewig and Mrs. Royal Stowall. Mrs. Morrow expressed herself as much impressed by the friendly atmosphere which prevails at the Carmel USO.

After leaving Carmel, Mrs. Morrow will go directly to Memphis, Tenn., where she will inaugurate the new USO program, establishing the first official training institute for USO volunteers, of which project she is the newly appointed chairman.

Here from Stockton

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Eagals and family are here for a few days from Stockton, occupying their Carmel home at Ocean View and Stewart Way.

Guests from Manhasset

Mrs. Roy E. Thomas and her daughter, Mary Louise, of Manhasset, Long Island, are guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Getsinger at their home on Casanova street. Mrs. Thomas is a sister of Mrs. Getsinger.

A New Leidig Grandchild

A baby son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Draper (Jean Leidig) at six o'clock on the morning of April 21, at the Peninsula Community Hospital. This is the second Draper child, their eldest, Wendy, being now twenty months old. They have named him Michael Raymond.

Miss Davis in Cleveland

The Carmel friends of Miss Virginia A. Davis, who formerly made her home here in Magic Case-ments, on Scenic Drive, will be happy to learn that she is now recovering from her recent illness. Miss Davis is residing with her sister, Mrs. N. L. MacCreary, in Cleveland, Ohio.

Half Hour Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Remi Scardigli came down from San Francisco this week — the main object of the trip being Mr. Scardigli's induction into the Army. Before returning to her home, Mrs. Scardigli had time for a scant half-hour's visit with old Carmel friends.

Dorothy Ledyard Nutrition Head

Miss Dorothy Ledyard has been appointed new nutrition chairman for the Carmel chapter of the Red Cross, and is planning an interesting and important course. Prospective members are urged to register at once, so that a time convenient for all may be selected.

Miss Ledyard is hoping to find a qualified dietitian to volunteer her services as assistant instructor.

Buddies Enter Army

Gerald Ray and his pal, Peter Elliott III, were both inducted into the army at the Monterey Presidio on April 19. Peter Elliott, whose family recently moved from Carmel to Burlingame, has been awaiting his call while continuing his university work. Gerald Ray is the son of Mrs. John Neikirk of Carmel, and has been working in the animation department of Walt Disney's studio in Hollywood.

Missionary Society

The Carmel Missionary Society will meet on Tuesday afternoon, April 27, at 2:30 in the recreation room of the Church of the Wayfarer. Rev. Vincent H. Coletta of Pacific Grove will tell of his work among the Italians of the Monterey Peninsula. Mrs. Coletta will also give details of her work.

The society is nearing the end of 36 years of service, in which it has taken an active part in support of the church work among the foreign residents of this area. It has also contributed to work among the Indians and to the American Mission to Lepers, both financially and in the making of bandages for the leper colonies.

Bombardier Wings

Yesterday, after twelve weeks of training at the Big Spring Bombardier school in Texas, Joseph H. Wadsworth, Jr., received his bombardier wings and commission as second lieutenant.

News of Donald Dawson

Donald Dawson, son of Mrs. Dio Dawson of Viscaino street, is now in training as an aerial gunner in Denver, Colorado. Following the completion of his basic work, he plans to enter officers' school.

Overhulse Family Visitors

Dawn Overhulse, her mother, her sister, Mrs. Hobart Morris and the two Morris children spent Thursday in Carmel, returning later to the Bay region.

Another Walker Boy

Mr. William Walker is handing out cigars to his fellow employees of the Monterey County Trust and Savings Bank in Carmel to celebrate the arrival of his and Mrs. Walker's second boy, born on April 18 at the Community Hospital. Young Douglas' new brother is Jeffrey Warren.

Ensign Hudson Here

Ensign Allan Hudson, U. S. N., the son of Captain and Mrs. Lester Hudson, U. S. N. and grandson of A. M. Allan, former owner of Point Lobos, is home on leave from active duty in the Pacific. With him is his wife, the former Mary Benson of Miami, Florida.

Good News for Bundles

In spite of the added hazards to shipping reported in the Atlantic of late, 225 cases of civilian and knitted garments and hospital supplies arrived safely in Great Britain during the month of March, their value being $42,257.50. A British mine-sweeper has just been christened "Miss Bundles" and the local organization of Bundles-United is wondering if any Pine Cone Cymbal readers know of any other case of an auxiliary naval vessel being named for a society of an allied country.

Dorothy Haasis Weds

Miss Dorothy Haasis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Haasis, was married on April 17, in Long Beach, California, to James Augustine Kane of Yonkers, N. Y., now an instructor in the U. S. Army Air Corps. The bride, whose family formerly lived in Carmel, is a graduate of Sunset school and Monterey high, and is now a student at Antioch College, Ohio. She plans to return here in June to graduate the following December.

John Canoles Here on Leave

John Canoles, Chief Pharmacist's Mate, U. S. N., arrived home on leave from the South Pacific last Saturday, just three days too late to give his daughter in marriage to Sergeant Harry W. Wogenstahl. This is his first visit with his family in seven months. On Monday he made a trip to San Francisco, accompanied by Mrs. Canoles (June Delight) and her mother, Mrs. Carol Edwards, the party returning to Carmel on Wednesday.

Attention, Bach Singers

Rehearsals for the Bach Chorus will begin next Tuesday evening, April 27, at 7:30 in Room 5 of Sunset School. Mr. R. E. Manhire will conduct until Miss Dehe Denny returns from San Jose to take over.
